Dr. Kevin Corsini Appointed as 11th President of San Diego Christian College

(Santee, Ca) The San Diego Christian College Board of Trustees announced the appointment of Dr. Kevin Corsini as the 11th President of San Diego Christian College. Dr. Corsini joins the SDCC family after a four-month global search by a committee comprised of trustees, staff, faculty and alumni. Corsini assumed his role as President on Monday, September 16, 2019.

Dr. Corsini brings spiritual passion, institutional vision, leadership experience and personal humility to the role. He holds a B.B.A. in Human Resource Management from the University of Georgia, a Th.M. in Pastoral Leadership from Dallas Theological Seminary, and a Ph.D. in Professional Counseling from Liberty University. His previous positions at Liberty University ranged from Instructor to Executive Vice Provost. He held vital roles in teams that dramatically expanded enrollment, developed and established multiple academic programs, successfully launched new academic facilities and courageously led thousands of faculty and staff members. Corsini is excited to bring his vast amount of experience in higher education and leadership to San Diego Christian College.

“I’ve spent the last decade working in administration in a large university environment and I’m looking forward to applying many of the lessons I learned to a small college organization,” Corsini said. “I also have a background as an executive in business which I believe will help in developing an efficient organization that is both fiscally responsible and student focused.”

Dr. Corsini’s first order of business as President will be to build relationships with the students, staff, faculty and community.

“I look forward to getting to know the students, staff and faculty. We have an amazing group of people who call SDCC home and I want to ensure I have deep connections on campus and can represent the college and our students with excellence as we work to build bridges across San Diego,” Corsini said. “San Diego Christian College presents a unique and exciting opportunity as it has a 50-year history and consistently has remained grounded in its mission. San Diego is a vibrant and dynamic community and I look forward to building and deepening relationships across the community.”

SDCC is a four-year liberal arts college and is currently ranked as one the top ten Christian Colleges in the United States. It is committed to investing in students who are eager to learn, create, grow and shape their worldviews through the intentional integration of faith, service, and learning inside and outside the classroom. Corsini shares SDCC’s passion for local and international outreach having spent time in multiple countries collaborating partnerships, outreach and programs. One of his goals is to ensure that the impact that the college and students are making is known throughout the community and City of San Diego.

“I've heard it said that SDCC is the best kept secret of San Diego, and I want to change that. This is an amazing college that has been here for almost five decades, and I want everyone in our city to know the impact it is providing both for our students and the community,” Corsini said.

Dr. Corsini and his wife, Dr. Marlene Corsini, have three children and they enjoy adventuring into the back-country in their '99 Jeep Wrangler for wilderness camping.
